

Kidsingers Essay

Every person has their goals, ambitions, and dreams including me. I want to make my family and friends proud of what I will accomplish and prove to them that anything is possible even when it seems impossible. I believe that anyone has the chance and opportunity to do what they want, but it takes effort and dedication, which is one of the things Kidsingers has taught me from the 8 years that I've been attending. I have many goals, ambitions, and dreams, but most importantly one of them is attending the school of my dreams and receiving the best education I can possibly earn.

I plan on going to UCSD to become a clinical psychologist and help those in need through therapy. I have always had a passion of helping others because I have learned that being humble is one of the simplest things a person can do and become, and what better way to spread positivity and lending a hand when it is needed most in our world today. In the fifth grade I wrote a graduation speech to read to my class and I'll never forget the words that I had said. I wasn't just an eleven-year old not knowing what I was trying to convey to the crowd, but on the other hand every word that I spoke came from the heart. That eleven-year old said, "Now we continue on to go to a four year college to get a bachelor's degree or hey even a masters degree or even better, a doctorate degree," and that is exactly what I plan on doing. I plan on getting my masters degree in clinical psychology and live up to what I said in the fifth grade to make my family and friends proud. Who knew that my eleven-year old self could be such an inspiration to my seventeen-year old self today.

Kidsingers has provided me with a place I could always depend on every Tuesday. A place for comfort and a place I can always depend on. Through Kidsingers I have found one of my passions which of course is singing, but Kidsingers has not only taught me many things, but it is now a part of who I am. I use to be a very shy little girl who wouldn't socialize a lot and if I did my face would turn red like a tomato. Kidsingers gave me the opportunity to break my shell to become the outgoing young women that I am today. One of the most important things that it has taught me is that education isn't handed to you, it is a privilege to receive an education and something that you need to work hard for. If it wasn't important to me I would be standing up here reading this scholarship essay. Last, but certainly not least, I have learned that if you want to achieve something and you want it bad you never find an excuse for not doing it, but if it's something you don't really want you always find an excuse for not doing it and I have never found an excuse for not coming to Kidsingers and will never find an excuse for not going to college to become a clinical psychologist. Thanks to Kidsingers I have learned many things that I will live up to for the rest of my life and investing in my education will not go to waste, but in fact every penny that have received will be well spent on my education. So thank you Kidsingers, thank you mom, and thank you to the rest of my family and friends.
